Robbins Pledges Support For Israel at Valley Rally

By DALE FINK, BEN NAPLES, and RANDY VENVERLOH
"Israel must live, and Israel will live," Alan Robbins, State Senator (D-22nd District), declared Tuesday at the Israeli Solidarity rally held in BSc101 to demonstrate and strengthen support, and to raise money, for the free state of Israel while the Arab-Israeli war wages on.

Moral Challenge
"There is a moral challenge to the American people to support Israel at this time. If we must live without Arab oil, it is a small price to pay in regard to the blood being sacrificed today in Israel," Robbins said. Robbins continued, "these have been trying days since on the day of Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the year for the Jews, the Arabs declared war on Israel. In the last 36 hours, the U.S. has begun sending supplies to Israel. However, that supply flow will only continue if the petitions, telegrams, and letters continue. The Russians are still sending 10 times the amount of supplies to the Arab nations as the U.S. is sending to Israel," Robbins said.

Robbins then went on to urge the A.S. government at Valley to take a position in favor of the Israeli plight. Zev Garber, Jewish Studies Department, said Sen. Robbins came on his own after learning of the activities on Valley's campus.

Interests Coincide
Sol Modell, professor of history, emphasized the Arabs aim of destruction, and a security of the U.S.-Israeli relationships. "This is a time when the interests of the Jewish people and Americans coincide," he said. Pivka Jaffe, an Israeli originally from Russia, proceeded with an Israeli perspective of the Mideast conflict and concluded by saying "are we being helped by the Americans, are we doing our duty, I hope we will," again stressing the humanitarian aspect of the conflict.

Synopsis Given
Other speakers included Al Levine, professor of psychology who briefly gave a synopsis of the Israeli conflict and Alex Hampton, A.S. evening division president, who then invited concerned to a meeting of the A.S. Council concerning the issue at hand and concluded by saying "that there are two wars, one with guns and arms and the other being one of public opinion."

The meeting concluded with Rabbi Adler asking for donations, which he said would be appreciated deeply ("nothing is trivial"), and for the volunteering of services and baked goods for the Bake Sale scheduled for Oct. 25, of which the proceeds will go to the Israeli cause.

Educators Express Distaste For Reagan's Tax Initiative

By RANDY VENVERLOH
Copy Editor

Several groups have come out in opposition to Proposition 1, Gov. Reagan's tax limitation initiative which will be submitted to California voters on Nov. 6.

Lavie Lokke, president of Community College Association (CCA), predicted "financial and educational disaster for all of California's community colleges" if Proposition 1 were passed. Speaking to state leaders and school officials, Lokke suggested that a tuition might be imposed on community college students to help raise funds that would be shut off by the tax initiative.

The California Higher Education Association also expressed a fear that a provision in Proposition 1 might force students and their parents to raise $121,000,000 that would be withheld by the state in the event Prop. 1 is passed.

ABC Contributes

The Association for Better Citizenship has announced it is contributing $65,000 for the defeat of the Reagan initiative. Jack L. Rowe, chairman of this organization, said the money will be used by Californians Against Prop. 1, a coalition of faculty, students, labor organizations, ethnic organizations, and other city, county, and employee groups.

Rowe and Bryan W. Stevens, president of the California Teachers Association, also requested more contributions to counter what they called "financing of the initiative by Reagan and his wealthy big business supporters." They charged that big landowners and high income earners would be unjustly favored by the Reagan initiative. Rowe and Stevens then cited the warnings by leading economists that vague wording of the bill would lead to many costly court battles for the state over these words' interpretations.

CTA Blasts Prop. 1

The California Federation of Teachers (CTA) State Council called the proposal an "ambitious scheme" to take huge public service funds from the government and "put it into the pockets of business corporations." The CTA Council also expressed their fear that passage of Prop. 1 would lead to increases in regressive sales tax.

Child Center Deliberation Held Today

By DALE FINK
News Editor

Valley Child Care Committee members will meet downtown today with the District Child Care Committee to discuss Valley's proposal for a Children's Center on campus.

"After examining the proposal, the District Child Care Committee will decide on their recommendation to the Board of Trustees," said Penelope Pollard, assistant professor of history.

Child Care Committee members presenting the proposal to the committee are Prof. Pollard, Ms. Sylvia Lubow, professor of history; and Bobbe McGhie, AWS president.

The District Child Care Committee is made up of representatives from all eight colleges in the district, with different positions represented by these various colleges. William Lewis, dean of students, represents Valley as the district dean of students.

Valley May Progress

"The District Child Care Committee has agreed to let Valley progress with their proposal without waiting for Harbor and East L.A. colleges to catch up," Lewis said Monday.

Previously the district committee stated that the children's centers must be a "joint effort" and that "Valley will not be able to go alone on this project." At the last district meeting Valley was the only college prepared with a formal proposal.

"Harbor currently may be ready to present their proposal today. It is doubtful that East L.A. will have a formal proposal as of yet," Lewis said.

Board Has Authority

The next crucial step for the Child Care Committee is their presentation of the proposal for a Valley College Children's Center to the Board of Trustees on Oct. 31. The Board of Trustees has the final authority over the funding of the Children's Center.

"The Board members are in general agreement with the concept of our proposal, although no concrete plans will be discussed until Oct. 31," Lewis said.

"The Child Care Committee urges parent-students to show their support for the proposed Children's Center by attending the Board of Trustees meeting with their children, to speak out and demonstrate the need for a Children's Center at Valley," Ms. McGhie said.

The Board of Trustees meeting will be Oct. 31, at 2:30 p.m. at 2140 Olympic Blvd. on the third floor.

Moscone Reveals Loan Legislation

By MARC LITTMAN
Editor-in-Chief

Decrying what he believes to be a "tragic waste of student potential," Senator George R. Moscone (D-San Francisco) announced plans to introduce legislation for low interest, state-subsidized loans for middle class students attending an institution of higher learning. The senate Democratic leader revealed his plans to the college press at an informal press conference last Wednesday at UCLA.

"It is a tragic thing when plans and dreams for a quality education are turned aside because a student's parents earn too much. The state ought not to tolerate such a towering injustice to the middle-income Californian," the contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination remarked.

Senator Moscone pointed to a recent quote attributed to David Bayer of the Office of Education who showed that students whose parents earn $9,000 to $10,000 per year are being turned down because of federal cutbacks in the student loan program.

'Cannot Wait'

The San Francisco Democrat emphasized that California cannot wait for the federal government to provide some provision for helping middle class students, adding that "the state has a stake in picking up this loop-hole." Were the federal government to institute some support for these students, California would look there for aid first, the senator further stated.

Under Moscone's legislation, to be introduced shortly after the legislature reconvenes in January, students whose families are classified in the middle-income ($9,000-$18,000) bracket would be eligible for assistance similar to the federally insured National Direct Student Loans but on the state level.

Students offered assistance under this program, which could be operative by Fall '74 if approved by the legislature, would be able to pay back their low interest loans over an extended period of time and would not have to post collateral.

Both independent and students living at home would be eligible for the state insured loans but the priority would be given to the student with the cooperative parent. Senator Moscone is currently meeting with school authorities to arrive at some fixed rate for the loans.

Investment in Future

"I am not suggesting that the state give the money to students," Senator Moscone said. "I am suggesting that it is only equitable and only an investment in our future to insure that qualified students can receive an education at the lowest possible cost. These loans are going to be paid back over a period of time by those who will have received the benefits of a better education," he explained.

The legislator expressed confidence that his upcoming bill would draw support from conservative sides as well because of its "learn, earn, and reimburse" formula.

In other areas, the senator is countering Gov. Reagan's recent veto of his collective bargaining bill, SB 400, by tracking down all the teacher strikes in the state during the past year in order to present a dramatic case disputing the governor's claim that "all is fine in the school system."

"We're not trying to legalize teacher strikes," Senator Moscone said. "Rather, we're trying to provide an

Mobile Counseling Unit Makes Debut

Los Angeles Valley College's newly acquired Mobile Counseling Center will make its debut at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation headquarters next Tuesday at 1 p.m.

At this center, prospective college students and any other interested persons will be advised as to career planning and given other assistance, such as veterans benefits, scholarship opportunities, etc. They will also be able to register for classes at Valley.

This attractive and functional eight by 20 foot trailer will remain at 3811 Valhalla Dr., Burbank, until Monday, Oct. 29. It will be staffed by Valley College counseling office personnel from 1 to 6 p.m. on a Monday through Friday basis.

Dr. John L. Reiter, dean of Admissions and Guidance, points out, "This facility will be especially advantageous to the disadvantaged segments of the population. Also, a special effort will be made to help veterans. After Lockheed, the counseling center will be used at the local high schools, shopping centers and other strategic places."

The mobile unit was obtained through the Federal Vocational Education Act.

Council Drafts 'Peace' Motion

By JUDY KAPLAN
Staff Writer

A motion for peace in the Middle East was passed by the Executive Council of the Associated Students.

"I move that council draft a resolution calling for a cease fire in the Middle East and a peaceful negotiation in order to resolve this situation which threatens world security," said Commissioner of Scholastic Activities Valerie Little.

Ms. Little urged that the council should not take sides in this war, but just support a cease fire for peace.

Evening Commissioner Alex Hampton said that this motion is very idealistic. "We at Valley should take a war-like position," said Hampton. "We must take a viewpoint to end this absurd slaughter," said Dave Churchill, commissioner of campus improvements, in favor of the motion.

Once again, Hampton's motion to condemn the nations waging war against Israel was defeated.

He presented a petition signed by 750 students with paid I.D.'s supporting the motion. After a discussion which included students from council as well as from the floor, and a vote of 6-7, it was voted down.

Hearings To Probe Alleged Aid Bungling

The state Assembly's Ways and Means Committee is holding hearings this week in San Francisco to investigate alleged "administrative bungling" in student aid programs.

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr. (D-San Francisco), said earlier that the committee will seek out abuses in the program, specifically in higher institutions, and expose them. He said that he feared that if the abuses were real and uncorrected, that "the solid worth of the programs" would be jeopardized.

College News Briefs

Reps Offer Advice

Representatives from 25 state colleges and universities as well as private institutions, will be on campus Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to meet with students interested in transferring to four-year schools. The gathering will take place in either Monarch Hall or the adjacent patio area.

'Caretaker' Starts Tonight

The Theater Arts Department is presenting "The Caretaker" by Harold Pinter tonight, Friday, and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Hoshoe Theater. Produced by Prof. Patrick Riley, it is the third of Pinter's plays to be performed at Valley.

Reservations can be obtained at the Business Office. Tickets are free to staff and students with paid I.D. or $2 for adults; children under 12, 50 cents.

Parent's Support Needed

The Child Care Committee urges parent-students to show their support for the proposed Children's Center by attending the Board of Trustees meeting with their children, to speak out and demonstrate the need for a Children's Center at Valley. The Board of Trustees will meet Oct. 31 at 2:30 p.m. at 2140 Olympic Blvd., on the third floor.

Deadline Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the last day to apply for A.S. scholarships and grants. The minimum income requirement for scholarships has been dropped and for grants, considerably lowered. Eligibility for grants and scholarships is now based primarily on participation in school activities and GPA. Applications are available in the Financial Aids Office (CC108) from 9 a.m. until noon and from 2-4 p.m.

Tickets Available

Tickets to the Bakersfield-Valley College football game may be picked up by presenting your paid A.S. card in the business office. All students and staff members must pick up their tickets by Thursday afternoon, Oct. 25. Student body and staff cards will not be honored at the stadium. All remaining tickets will be sold for $2 on a first come-first served basis.

Council Position Open

The office of parliamentarian is open. The position is an appointed one, and the Student Council has asked that all interested parties fill out applications for the post in the Student Affairs Office. As of this date, there have been no applicants. There is a Parliamentary Procedure Class held Wednesday from 3 to 5 p.m. that could help with this position.

VALERIE LITTLE, COMMISSIONER of scholastic activities, urges Council to pass her resolution calling for a cease fire in the Middle East. Ms. Little said that Council should not take sides, but just support peaceful negotiations. The motion was passed by a vote of 10-5. Valley Star Photo by Aparicio Gil

No' Vote on Proposition 1 Urged

When Californians pass judgment on Proposition 1, the "Tax Limitation Initiative" in a Nov. 6 special ballot election, something more will be at stake than merely restricting the growth of state government or the possible alleviation of the homeowners' property tax burden.

Also to be decided, although not delineated in judicial verbiage, is the fate of a trend that has expanded from the establishment of free schools in colonial New England to free two-year college education offered in California today. Indeed, the future of the state's community college system as it exists now is on the line.

Proponents of the measure claim that government has been growing rapidly in recent years, presently demanding some 44.7 percent of the taxpayer's dollar and that without controls, government will continue to grow.

The initiative, which would be Article 29 of the state constitution if passed, would halt this rise and refund to Californians through the next 15 years over $100 billion that would have been taxed away. The average family of four would save $17,000 in that time, advocates conclude.

The proposal's opponents, rallying behind Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti (D-42nd Assembly District) and State Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, respond that the Governor exaggerates both the size of government and its future growth. They claim that not only is the tax fund of Proposition 1 to citizens overstated, but that a likely shift of state costs to localities could mean an offsetting increase in local taxes, especially property taxes.

Apathy Noted in Special Election

The campaign for the offices of Fair Representation concluded recently not with a roar, but with a fizzle. Last semester a heated issue of the political set was the Fair Representation Amendment.

The persons in favor of the amendment claimed that the incumbent council was unable to fairly represent the entire student body. Great pains were taken to publicize the need for the offices of Black and Chicano ethnic studies.

A petition was circulated on campus which gathered 873 signatures, (326 more than the necessary 547). This definitely showed an interest in Fair Representation. Yet, when the final votes were tallied in the recent election only 158 students had voted.

Of the entire number of 10,088 eligible voter son campus, only 158 persons bothered to vote. This constitutes less than two percent of the voting population.

This miniscule percent of the population has voted two people into office. Even if these offices are meant to represent only a certain portion of the student body, is it ethical to have them voted in on the power of less than two percent of the total number of eligible voters on campus?

Even on the current Student Council only 10 out of 15 students voted, and of the non-voting members at least two were deeply involved with getting the Fair Representation Amendment on the ballot last semester.

Finally, opponents contend that harmful cuts in the state budget will take place if Article 29 passes.

Testifying before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee in early September, Post predicted that it would be necessary to cut the state budget $620 million next year alone if Proposition 1 passes. Possible cuts in higher education's projected budget of $918 million might total $150 million.

In a survey released Aug. 29 probing possible budget reductions and transfers the state could utilize if the tax initiative becomes law, the analyst suggested that higher education cuts could be made up in part by imposing a $100 annual tuition fee on the community colleges and eliminating state support for noncredit courses at these colleges.

Further, Post remarked that cuts could also be made in state scholarship and loans and another $9 million cut from the educational opportunity programs.

At a time when the community colleges have ventured forth into their outlying areas to bring the resources of the college to where it's needed in the community, and have simultaneously intensified their efforts to provide balanced education for even the most impoverished citizens, such drastic cuts in their budget cannot be reconciled by paltry savings in homeowners' property taxes. If anything, the community colleges need more state aid, not less.

Granted, property owners deserve some tax relief, but Star believes that Proposition 1 is not the answer and therefore strongly urges a "No" vote on the tax initiative in the Nov. 6 election.

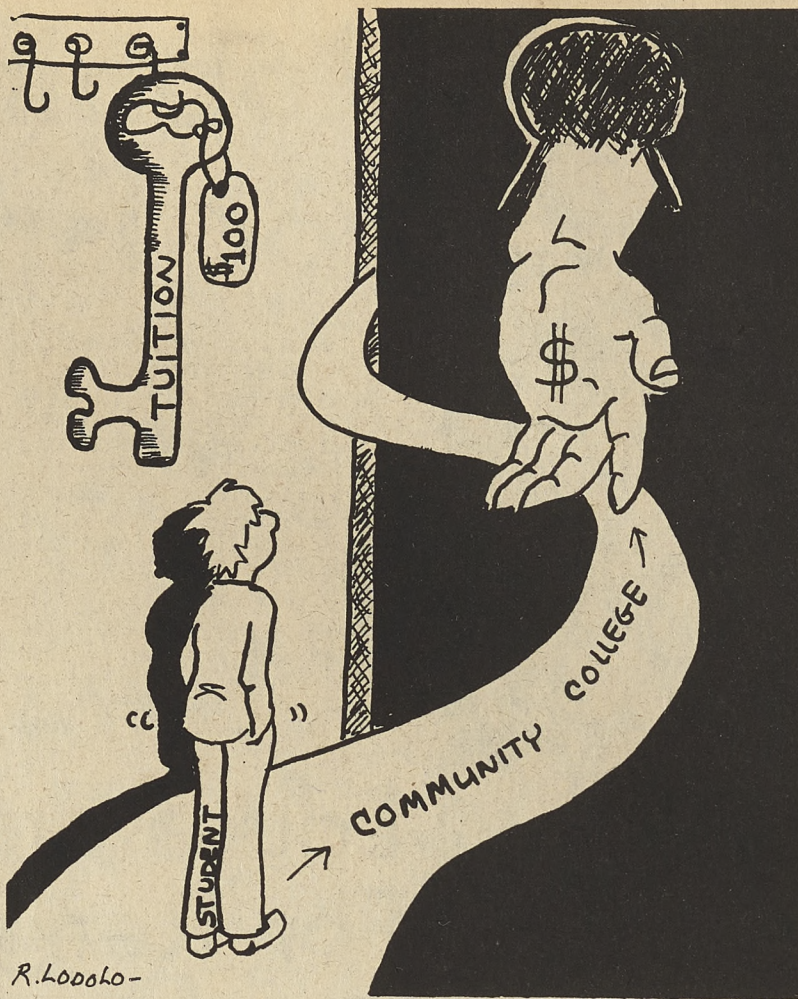

There are three possible explanations for the poor voter turnout. One is that publicity for the campaign was minimal due to the fact that the campaign needed at least three weeks to be properly run. Lack of time caused the special election to be postponed from the end of last semester to the beginning of this semester. Continuous saturation publicizing of the election was impossible over this time span.

The second reason was that the office of student elections was vacant at the beginning of this semester. The organization of this office at the last minute caused further publicity problems.

Lastly, it is possible that a majority of the students who were involved with putting the Fair Representation Amendment on the ballot last semester were under the impression that once the amendment was approved the battle was over.

Too often in a democracy there is a lack of interest in government when there are no outstanding problems to be solved.

In any case, overall student apathy was demonstrated in the special election. This apathy is an enigma. This enigma at Valley seems to be a reflection of the nation as a whole. Consequently, it would not be surprising that the student government could eventually be controlled by any kind of political minority.

Professors Urge Denunciation Of Middle East 'War Makers'

Editor:

Four wars in 25 years! A tiny nation, numbering fewer than 3 million souls, has been attacked once again and is being forced to fight for its very existence and for the lives of its people against the combined might of more than 100 million Arabs and the hostility of much of the remainder of the world.

The Arabs insist that they desire only the return of the lands Israel took possession of in 1967. But every unprejudiced observer knows that Israel was compelled to go to war three times prior to the capture of those lands by her army in the Six-Day War. It has been tragically evident that above all else the Arabs want one thing—the destruction of Israel. This alone can explain their adamant refusal to recognize the existence of the State of Israel and their utter rejection of the efforts Israel has made to negotiate the issues between them.

It has been asserted by some unthinking people that Israel is a "reactionary state" and the "tool of American imperialism." But these are clearly unfounded accusations; the facts are quite the opposite. Any person who is willing to face the truth knows that Israel is the only democratic country in the Middle East. Any American who wants to know does know that Israel was born in the face of bitter opposition by the Anglo-American oil interests and that these imperialists have tried for years, in every conceivable way, to influence American public opinion against Israel and to pressure the American government to adopt an anti-Israeli position.

Propagandists claim that the Arabs, themselves Semites, feel no hostility toward the Jews—only toward Zionism, and many political neophytes have been brainwashed into believing this. The fact is, however, that behind a smokescreen of rhetoric many Arabs have engaged in the most reprehensible forms of anti-Jewish propaganda.

Many progressive leaders, such as Mayor Tom Bradley and Sen. Alan Cranston, have declared in the most emphatic terms their understanding that the interest of every liberty-loving human being requires that Israel emerge victorious from her terrible ordeal and that she should therefore be aided and supported. But at Valley College some students have adopted an attitude of ill will toward this embattled nation.

Surely, if students could with reason take up the cause of peace in Southeast Asia it is not too much to hope that they will denounce the war makers in the Middle East, refuse to countenance America's surrender to oil blackmail, and rally behind Israel, the one country in the region that seeks and stands for peace.

Flavor of 'Old West' Flows Freely Again During Annual Calabasas Pumpkin Festival

By GREGORY J. WILCOX

Just outside the time-worn wooden building bearing the sign Reflections in Glass, a cowboy in a black hat with a silver band and a six-gun embracing his waist pushed his way through the crowd. He moved with an easy gait and the heels of his scuffed and manure-caked boots kicked little puffs of dust up towards his knees.

He brushed past a street magician, spoke into a walkie-talkie and disappeared around the corner.

Magician Entertains

The magician, a bowler hat sitting atop a mop of curly hair, was entertaining a group of onlookers.

"Yes, my friends, the hand is quicker than the eye," the magician said as he manipulated three silver coins, making one disappear. The crowd awed their appreciation and the magician went into another pitch.

"I know how you did that last trick," said a little boy partially hidden by his father.

"Then come here, skeptic," intoned the magician, pulling the boy out of the crowd.

He performed the trick another time and the youngster failed to figure it out. As the magician started his next trick, some stayed to watch and others moved on down the dusty street to see other attractions at the Calabasas Pumpkin Festival.

Features 115 Booths

Following the theme of a turn-of-the-century country fair, the festival features 115 booths where craftsmen display their wares. The merchandise is priced from $700 for a driftwood table to 25 cents for an Italian Ice. Almost as interesting as the array of merchandise are the booths constructed by the vendors. Some are merely wooden beams covered with bright bolts of cloth, while others are the sturdy works of two-by-fours, with a front porch with swinging doors and walls of wood plank.

When the craving for food overtakes the soul, the appetite may be satisfied with delicacies ranging from Indian fry bread to Polish sausage, then washed down with soda, beer, or wine.

The festival was put together by Jack Farley of the Calabasas Chamber of Commerce. "We want to preserve some of the flavor of the Old West and promote the town," he said.

The October sun was hot and bright, sending many in search of a shady tree and a plastic cup of beer. Out of reach of the sun, two boys and a girl were playing some ho-down music in front of a shop. It was a lively tune and a Black man with suede boots grabbed a girl in a black lace dress and they started dancing. The crowd in the street laughed and clapped their hands in time to the music. After the song was finished, the man started to move off down the street.

The festival will continue until Oct. 28, and it will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission to the festival is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. Children under five are admitted free of charge.

REFLECTIONS

Clues To Help Trim Food Costs Revealed

For the poor man, crossing the automatic sliding doors of a supermarket is like Caesar crossing his "Rubicon." Both are risky propositions.

According to recent figures offered by the Federal Food and Drug Administration, it's now impossible for a four-member family to eat on less than $120 per month. For an individual it costs about $40 per month.

But there are certain precautionary measures that a person of limited means may resort to. They are simple rules, and although they are sometimes inconvenient, they will help.

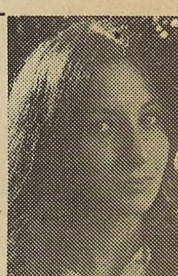

For one, never go food shopping in any place but a grocery store. The National Consumer's Board maintains that food purchased in a retail store is apt to be 50 per cent less than food of an inferior quality bought from cafeterias and hamburger stands.

When you do go shopping, try to eat beforehand, or rather don't be hungry. Available statistics reveal that people tend to buy more when they are.

Never buy pre-sliced coldcuts or other delicatessen goodies. Not only are these products processed to such a degree that all the important nutrients are eliminated, you are paying double the price per pound for the slicing and packaging.

CAROLYN
RISTUCCIA

Fine Arts Editor

It is wise to make a list before marketing and adhere to it. Try to buy all the basic foods at once.

By watching ads, one may determine which stores really offer bargains.

In the case of buying meats, fish, and dairy products, think about quality. Pay for these highly nutritious foods, but skimp on something else like toilet bowl cleaner, not on good food.

Try to avoid eating canned goods if fresh or frozen vegetables are available.

Ignore "easy-do convenience packages" such as tea bags and potato chips in small bags. These cost more than the same thing in bulk.

Buy supermarket chain brands; they are actually name brands labeled by the markets. Frozen vegetables are considerably cheaper if they come in bags rather than boxes.

When you do watch the ads for bargains, be careful of what some experts term the "loss leaders," the markets which hawk low prices for maybe two items, but make a tremendous profit on other things, once the customers are seduced into the store.

In conclusion, perhaps Ernest Calenbach put it best: "So long as we live in a society in which the essentials of life are so expensive, we will develop a disdain for money. And yet, a disdain for money should not lead us to neglect learning how to take care of it."

When Valley Was Young

Eighty-three students were named on the Dean's List during the Spring '63 semester at Valley College, according to an issue of Star published then. That was a slight increase over the 80 students who had been on the list the previous semester.

Dean's List figures have climbed over a decade's time, as has enrollment. There were only 5,315 students attending Valley in Spring '63. When one compares those figures to the over 19,000 students attending Valley presently, it is understandable that Dean's List numbers have proportionately rose to their present figure: 680.

Craig Altshul, editor of Star for the Spring, 1960 semester, is now the national director of public relations for the YMCA according to Roger Graham, a journalism professor at Valley College.

alogous to the all-knowing, all-pow-erful "Big Brother," may find it necessary to dictate to all of its citizens how much energy they can use.

Happily, matters have not reached such a sad state—yet. The Nixon Administration is advocating energy conservation on a "voluntary" basis. In other words, the government is pushing mainly for fuel conservation on the part of every energy-consuming individual in lieu of setting up governmental controls over energy distribution. This is a healthy extension of trust in the individual by the government.

The government's goal of achieving a 5 percent nationwide fuel saving within one year may be realized if consumers curtail their energy use in two major areas. In the area of home heating, fuel can be conserved by improving structural insulation and lowering thermostats. Gasoline consumption, the other major area, can be reduced through car pools, the use of public transportation, driving less and at a slower speed, and driving smaller cars.

It is disappointing when one discovers that there are still a great number of people who continue to waste energy as if they were ignorant of the seriousness of the fuel shortage. Perhaps they are. Such people might gain a bit of insight by noting that commercial establishments may soon have to limit their business hours to comply with conservation guidelines set down by the Department of Water and Power.

A ban may be placed on illuminating night advertising signs, outdoor night sporting events, architectural and decorative lighting, and other forms of energy considered to be superfluous as the energy crisis develops. The DWP is even proposing to implement a system of "rotating blackouts" when energy shortages reach a peak.

People can forestall the menacing possibility of future governmental energy rationing and other potential restrictions if they make efforts to curb energy use. But if fuel consumers cling to their wasteful habits of the past, they may find themselves in an almost Orwellian world, depending on tightly controlled fuel rations doled out by "Big Brother" for their very survival.

Ombudsman Unit Assists Students

By JANET SVENDSEN
Managing Editor

Students with consumer complaints found sympathetic interest and assistance last Thursday when the KABC Radio Ombudsman Mobile Unit made a campus visit in the Free Speech Area. The ombudsman service was described as a "people's advocate within the people" by Shelley Hendler, the KABC representative who registered students' complaints and proffered public service literature to interested passers-by.

Debate Team Qualifies at Cal Fullerton

For the first time ever, Valley's top debate team, which consisted of Steve Bloom and Mitch Guthman, qualified for the elimination rounds at the Fullerton Invitational held Oct. 12 through 14, dropping a 3-0 decision to USC in the quarter-final round.

Coach Jack Sterk called this "the best start ever in Valley's debate history." Marty Goldsmith and Barbara McDowell finished 4-4 in the tournament which included 50 schools, with only four community colleges in attendance.

This weekend Valley will split its squad as Bloom and Guthman go up to the Sacramento Invitational, while the remaining members compete at the El Camino warmup.

Poetry Contest, Magazine Seek Writers, Poets

Students who like to write will be given two opportunities to display their talents this semester by submitting their work to Manuscript, Valley's literary publication, or by entering the National Poetry Contest.

All students are eligible to write for Manuscript. Entries should be submitted to the Manuscript box in H121 before Dec. 1. Evening students should use the envelope outside the room. Criteria for entries are posted in H121.

The National Poetry Press is sponsoring a poetry contest for all students. Entries should be mailed to National Poetry Press, 3210 Selby Avenue, L.A. CA 90034. Entries must be received by Nov. 5. Rules are posted in H121.

Democratic Club Supports Israel, Defeat of Prop. 1

The defeat of Proposition 1 on Nov. 6, support for Israel in the Mideast war, and honesty in government are the prime concerns of the Valley College Young Democratic Club.

Debra L. Tuller, chairwoman of the club, said in a recent interview that passage of Proposition 1 "would be a disaster for the California Community Colleges" because they would lose the financial support obtained through taxes. Consequently, students would pay tuition amounting to $100 each.

Miss Tuller, a theater arts major, believes that tuition would impose a hardship on most community college students.

The campus Young Democrats are endorsing the Israeli cause and working for that nation's continued existence. They are aiding Israel with contributions of money, food, and clothing. Some Young Democrats have left school to go to Israel and give that nation their ultimate support.

"We are currently trying to arrange for Democratic candidates in the upcoming governor's race to speak at Valley College," Miss Tuller said.

These candidates include Bob Morretti, Jerome Waldie, Joseph Alioto, and Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr.

Despite Watergate, Miss Tuller believes that politics can "bring out the best in people." The Young Democrats have signed more than 50 members this semester and need more students "with drive and energy."

The Valley College Young Democratic Club is affiliated with the California Federation of Young Democrats.

Paid D Benefits Discussed

A program to give discount booklets for food, entertainment, and other miscellaneous items with paid student I.D. cards was brought before the finance committee meeting Tuesday.

KLAV To Apply For FM License

By PATRICIA K. EMRY
Staff Writer

Application for an FM license is being made to put the campus radio station, KLAV, "on the air."

"The U.S. has signed a treaty with Mexico limiting their use of certain frequencies," said William Nelson, instructor in the Broadcasting Department. "These frequencies will be set aside for educational stations and we hope to be assigned one of them."

"When the FCC reviews an application, they take several things into consideration," reported Nelson. "One of the primary concerns is the station's ability to get on the air once they are given a license. You have to show that you do have the money available for a transmitter and other necessary equipment. This was the purpose of the reserve account discussed at the Associated Students Finance Committee meeting."

Account Down

As it stands, the account is presently down from its original balance of $6,000 to $4,600. Prof. Nelson feels that it is critical to replace the $1,400 used to meet the FCC requirements.

Where will the money come from?

Bruno Cicotti, coordinator of student affairs and adviser on the A.S. Finance Committee said, "At present, I do not know where the money can be found. However, I am very much in favor of getting the FM license for KLAV. It will provide an educational opportunity for the broadcasting students while serving the community and giving Valley a good public relations media."

Re-evaluate Priorities

"There are two ways of getting the money," Cicotti suggested. "One is to re-evaluate priorities in the department so they can use their present budget of $1,500 to make up the deficit in the account, or to create an innovative program that would appeal to the A.S. Student Council and gain their support for an increased budget request."

Kevin Stern, KLAV station manager, and fellow student Tim Dewey spent two days getting over a thousand signatures on a petition showing that students supported KLAV. "This seems to have had little effect on the Student Council," said Stern. "We feel that they are not supporting us in our efforts to get the FM license."

Record Number on Dean's List

By SHIRLEY GREGORY
Staff Writer

The unprecedented total of 680 names on the Dean's List for the Spring '73 semester, establishes the largest number of honor students in Valley's 24 years. Those making the list for the first time number 364. A year ago the overall total was 586.

Jack Neblett, dean of instruction, attributes the record to the fact that there is no longer fear of the draft forcing college attendance, and that students are more serious about an education now. Neblett added that there are more part-time students meeting Dean's List requirements.

Only those students who earn a grade point average of 3.5 or above in 12 units for the preceding semester, or who have completed 30 or more units at Valley with a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.5 are eligible for inclusion on the Dean's List.

Each semester Valley College publicly recognizes high academic achievement of outstanding students by placing their names on the Dean's List and by honoring them at a tea, sponsored by the college administration and the Associated Students.

The tea and reception will be held Nov. 7 at 2:30 p.m. in Monarch Hall. Honor students, student officers, faculty, and administrators attend.

The Dean's Tea Committee, headed by John Hall, TAE president, will handle decorations and ushering.

Dick Carlson, associate professor of music, and Peter Mauk, associate professor of Theater Arts, will present entertainment by students.

El Camino Edges VC 26-30; Clinch Cross Country Crown

By DEREK LAWSON
Staff Writer

El Camino defeated Valley's cross-country team Friday by a score of 26-30 (lowest score wins).

Cliff Morden and Jerry Alexander battled all through the race with El Camino's Mike Avera and Thomas Rodriguez, each runner taking their turn in the lead. At the end of three miles, Alexander and Rodriguez had fallen off the pace with Avera and Morden running side by side fighting for first place.

In the last 330 yards both Morden and Avera began to sprint for the finish with Avera out-leaving Morden to win by one second. Avera ran the four-mile course in 20:18 and Morden in 20:19. Rodriguez place third in 20:36 and Alexander grabbed fourth in a time of 20:43.

Joel Scott, Dennis Vitarelli, and Richard West had fine runs for Valley. These men will have to run tough in the coming weeks.

Conference Finals

"We have three weeks before the conference finals and by that time Craig Clemmer and Steve Acuff should be back," said Monarch Coach George Ker. "I am sure that we will beat El Camino in the finals. Remember, El Camino won Valley in a dual meet in 1969 and 1970, and Valley went on to become State Champion those years."

In the next two weeks, Valley will run in the College of the Canyons Invitational and the Mt. SAC Invitational.

Important Meets

These meets will be important for Valley because they will be able to size-up the other teams in Southern California.

Valley vs. El Camino: 1. Mike Avera (El Camino) 20:18; 2. Cliff Morden (Valley) 20:19; 3. Thomas Rodriguez (El Camino) 20:36; 4. Jerry Alexander (Valley) 20:43; 5. Steve Walsh (El Camino) 20:49.

Tough Monarch Defense Stops Brahmas; Valley To Meet Bakersfield Tomorrow

Valley's vastly improved water polo squad opened the 1973 Metro Conference campaign last Friday afternoon, with a 4-1 victory over arch-rival Pierce College in a rare low-scoring game.

The Monarchs will take their all-time best 11-3 record into tomorrow's match at Birmingham High when they take on the Bakersfield College Renegades beginning at 3 p.m.

"Our goalies Tim Erwin and Jim Olsen played excellent defense and enabled us to win our first league match," said Head Coach Bill Krauss following the game. Coach Krauss also singled out Gary Leeds, Bill Prinzing, and Roger Meffin for their strong performances against the Brahmas.

In the match, the Monarchs got two goals from Andrei Livian (27 on the season), and one each from Paul Snyder (31 on the year), and Kevin Gunn (32 on the season).

Coach Krauss believes that the toughest team in the conference will be defending champion Long Beach

City College. "As usual they are very strong and deep, and also have a lot of experience," stated Coach Krauss.

Lancers, 'Gades Close Out '73 Non-Metro Play

Only two teams in the Metropolitan Conference saw action last weekend. League competition gets under way Saturday. Bakersfield won its third straight encounter 35-23 over Cerritos College, and Citrus College shutout Pasadena 29-0.

Bakersfield 25, Cerritos 23. With the passing of quarterback Kevin Snead and the running of Ron Sargent, the 'Gades outlasted a determined Cerritos team, 35-23, at the Orange County school. Snead and company will take a 4-1 non-conference record into Saturday night's encounter with once-beaten Pierce College in Woodland Hills.

Citrus 29, Pasadena 0

Playing at home for the first time in two weeks, the Lancers could not hit the end zone last Saturday night against Citrus College. Pasadena will open league play with a 3-2 non-conference record against the Vikings of Long Beach City College in the Bay Area city on Saturday.

Monarchs To Play Warriors In Upcoming Grid Opener

By FERNANDO DOMINGUEZ
Sports Editor

The Valley College Monarchs open their 21st year of Metro Conference football Saturday night, hosting the always tough El Camino College Warriors at Monarch Stadium. Kickoff time is 7:30.

Valley's last victory over El Camino was a 30-12 rout of the Warriors in 1958 under the then Monarch coach Al Hunt, who guided Valley to its only Metro championship in 1955.

The Monarchs are 4-17 lifetime against the Tribe, and were set back last year by a score of 40-0.

The 1973 Warrior edition, under 12-year Head Coach Ken Swearingner, and comprised mainly of freshmen, comes into the game with a 2-2 non-conference record.

One of the top freshmen, quarterback Jeff Austin, was fourth among Metro passers during the pre-conference games, completing 34 of 68 for 492 yards and four touchdowns.

Teaming with Austin in the Warrior aerial attack will be tight-end John Crabtree and wide receiver Volen Dixon.

Crabtree garnered 16 passes for 243 yards and two touchdowns in the four El Camino games this season, and Dixon caught 15 for 212 yards and two touchdowns.

Leading the Warrior running attack is Terry Howse, a first-year man out of Hawthorne High, who has carried the piskin 54 times for 240 yards, a 4.4 average per carry.

Valley, meanwhile, was 1-3 in non-conference games, defeating East L.A., and losing to L.A. Southwest,

S.D. Mesa, and Mt. San Antonio colleges.

Head Coach Ed Sowash, "starting his second year at the helm, doesn't have an easy job ahead of him."

The Monarchs have a 14-game conference losing streak dating back to 1970, when they defeated Long Beach City College 15-14 midway through the season.

Freshman quarterback Jeff Robinson and sophomore wide receiver Jon Yates will lead Valley's offensive charge Saturday night.

Yates has 202 yards and two touchdowns in 15 completions and Robinson is 13 for 37 for 179 yards and one touchdown.

Linebackers Stan Shure and Vernell Outlaw, and linemen Leroy Smith and John Houston are tops defensively for the Monarchs.

Gridders Seek Title; Only 2nd in History

By MIKE HOCHBERG
Assoc. Sports Editor

There is no doubt in my mind that the 1973 Valley College football team can be a fine representative to the Metropolitan Conference football scene this year.

In 1972 the Monarchs tallied a 0-5 conference record, but this is not indicative of the locals' fine showing in the later league contests.

Head Coach Ed Sowash brings a 14-game conference losing streak into Saturday night's encounter with the El Camino Warriors at Monarch Stadium at 7:30.

What a difference a year might make for Valley.

Just one year ago the Monarchs entire offensive attack revolved around All-Metro quarterback Fred Grimes, who established numerous Valley and league records during his two-year playing career.

There's still a fine passing attack, of course, but so far in '73 the Monarchs have employed the running offense as often as the pass.

Eighteen years ago (1955) was the last time Valley had a first place finish. Times have been hard, but in tradition I think this record will be extended another year. If miracles do occur at Valley, they had better start to happen against El Camino on Saturday, or Coach Sowash will face another losing campaign.

Julius Mathis, Steve Hackbarth, and Jeff Robinson have all been tried at quarterback in the four non-league contests, but to win the Metro, Valley must have only one quarterback. Mathis is a runner; Hackbarth, a passer; while Robinson can do both.

In the three games I have seen, I would pick Mathis or Robinson over the burly Hackbarth at the signal caller spot.

Harl Starks and Charles Nash are fine runners if the hole is there, but if there are none, Valley will be in for a stiff test against the likes of Bakersfield, Pierce, Pasadena, Long Beach, and even El Camino.

One of the most impressive positions on the team is that of the wide receivers. Mike Steele, Jon Yates, and Tyrone Bell all have shown well in the first four games of '73. Yates caught 10 passes against the number one rated Mt. San Antonio College Mounties in a losing effort two weeks ago and looked like a first class receiver. Bell has shown fine speed and ability to catch the long pass. Steele, a transfer from the University of New Mexico, can be counted upon for his sure hands and knack to get open as evident in previous games.

The defensive line has shown good size and mobility, but it has been difficult to sack the opposing team. Terry Pettigrew, Steve Cooper, and Leroy Smith have spearheaded the charge on the line.

"Our linebacking crew was excellent all year," said Sowash. Louis Debose, Stan Shure (five interceptions), Vernell Outlaw (all-Metro in '72), and Charles Herring have plugged many a hole, and probably will continue during league.

Lloyd Harris and Jon Rhodes return from last year, but it appears to me that Valley opponents have been throwing into the secondary. Outside of Harris and Rhodes the Monarchs are somewhat short on experience.

Going into Saturday night's action I have to predict Pierce and Bakersfield as the co-favorites for first place.

Cagettes Defeat Santa Ana For 4th Consecutive Victory

Women's basketball and coed volleyball teams at Valley enjoyed a successful week of intercollegiate competition last week, winning five of six games.

BASKETBALL

The varsity and JV teams had an easy time, winning all four games.

Valley didn't experience much trouble against East L.A. early in the week.

Captain Candy Fisher scored 22 points to lead the varsity five to a lopsided 84-32 victory, and Karen Southwick contributed 16 points in a 43-31 JV win.

Later in the week, the Monarchs took two from Santa Ana College, winning the varsity encounter 64-32, and the JV contest 54-34.

High point honors in the varsity game went to freshman sensation Charlotte Thomas, who scored 18 points and grabbed nine rebounds.

The JV's were sparked by the rebounding of Tia Caldwell (21) and Nancy Wolf (20).

The varsity squad is 4-0 in non-league competition, and the JV's are 3-1.

VARSITY SCORING

VS. EAST L.A. Fisher (22), Thomas (16), Sister Baldwin (12), Chris Miner (9), Karen Bird (8), Carol Piechocinski (6), Donna Meza (5), Sandy Spare (4), and Cathy Mejia (2).

VS. SANTA ANA — Thomas (18), Baldwin (11), Miner (10), Fisher (8), Piechocinski (6), Meza (6), Spare (2), Bird (2), and Mejia (1).

COED VOLLEYBALL

The Monarch coed volleyball squads split a pair of games against Rio Hondo College last week.

The "A" team defeated Rio Hondo, 16-14, 15-7, but the "AA" squad lost 15-11, 12-15, 10-15.

These were the opening games of the non-conference season for both teams.

COED TENNIS

The Monarch's coed tennis team lost both matches last week, 7-2 against Pasadena City College, and 6-1 against Santa Monica City College.

Valley is now 1-2 for the year.

Monarch Coach Spends Summer in Italy; Teaches Italians How To Play Baseball

Last year the Italian government, in an attempt to improve the quality of baseball in their country, selected 14 American coaches to conduct clinics all over Italy.

One of the men selected was Valley's assistant coach Jerry Weinstein. Coach Weinstein spent the past summer conducting instructional camps there, mainly in the Friuli Venezia Giulia province.

"I worked mostly with young kids, ranging in age from 10-18 years," said Weinstein. "Their enthusiasm was great. Some with broken arms even came out to play."

"They have good facilities for their Class 'A' teams, which are comparable to an average community college team in the U.S., but they need to improve the facilities for the youngsters," said Weinstein.

Besides conducting the clinics, the coaches were asked to give their opinion on how the Italian baseball program could be improved.

"My recommendation was for them to put more emphasis on left-handed hitting and pitching," said Weinstein. "There are very few lefthanders, if any, because they encourage the players to be righthanders, as if being a lefthander was some kind of a crime."

Italians Are Noisy

Attending a baseball game in Italy is very expensive in relation to what the average family income is. It costs approximately 1,000 liras ($1.60 U.S.) to get an admittance ticket, but still, the popularity of the sport from the spectator standpoint keeps on growing.

"Italians are very noisy during sports events, and they let it be known who they are rooting for," said Weinstein.

Second in European Championships

The Italian teams play a 44-game schedule, but it might take them as long as seven months to complete the short campaign because they only play on weekends. "They do a lot of 'reposo' (resting) in Italy," said Weinstein.

Recently, the Italian National team took second place in the European championships won by Holland, and also defeated an American all-star team, 7-5, in the World Baseball Association tournament held last year.

Soccer remains the number one sport in Italy, but the steps taken by the government could launch them into the world baseball scene in the near future.

Curtain Rises on Caretaker Drama

Intensely intimate drama returns to the Valley College Horseshoe Theater tonight as the Theater Arts Dept. stages its first production of "The Caretaker" by Harold Pinter.

Patrick Riley, associate professor of theater arts, directs the three-character comedy/tragedy. The players are John Walker as Mick, David Arrias as Davies, and Jeff Reese as Aston. All three actors have performed previously on Valley College stages. Most recently, Walker appeared in "Dracula," Arrias in "Ranchman" and as Sancho in "Man of La Mancha," and Reese as the lead in "Butterflies Are Free."

The story involves Mick and Aston, two brothers, and Davies, a tramp. Aston saves Davies from a barroom beating and takes the tramp to his flat, a rundown house with only one usable room. Aston talks vaguely of repairing the rest of the rooms, and building a shed out back, but spends his time putting aimlessly with toasters and electrical outlets.

Breaks the Tramps Arm

When Mick enters, he discovers Davies alone in the room, mistakes him for a burglar, and nearly breaks the tramp's arm. After Davies explains his presence, Mick offers him a job as caretaker. As the play progresses, Pinter, concerned more with character development than actual plot action, verbally strips the skin from his characters.

"The Caretaker" marks the third Pinter production Riley has been involved with during his 11 years at Valley. He recently directed "The Homecoming" and "The Birthday Party." Riley prefers the Horseshoe Theater because of its limited seating capacity, 120 people. All seats are close to the stage, heightening the audience's sense of emotional involvement with the players.

Ticket Reservations

Unfortunately, 120 seats a night won't go very far in a college with an enrollment of more than 10,000. Ticket reservations can be made at the Business Office. The tickets will be held at the box office until 8:15 on the night of the performance.

"The Caretaker" is scheduled to run on two successive weekends, Oct. 18, 19, 20, and Oct. 25, 26, 27. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Students with paid ID will be admitted free, all others $2.

The next Theater Arts Dept. production will be Hart and Kaufman's comedy "You Can't Take It With You," Nov. 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, and 17.

Donations Due On December 1 For Manuscript

Contributions to "Manuscript," Valley's student-produced fiction magazine, are due no later than Dec. 1, according to Editor Debbie Kreda. Submissions of prose, poetry, or short stories must be typewritten and turned into the "Manuscript" box in Humanities 121. Modest cash prizes will be awarded for the best submissions.

Stevie Wonder Disc Shows 'Innervision'

In 1971, Steveland Morris (Stevie Wonder) turned 21, and was eligible to receive all of his childhood earnings held by a state-appointed guardian for his nine albums and 13 gold records.

Having taken care of, Wonder moved out of his parents' house, got married, and began breaking out of the mold established for him by Motown records.

His first album was designed to open up his music as much as possible so that he could, as he says, "be myself."

A New Style

He began anew with an album recorded independently at the Electric Lady Studios in New York. The album was entitled "Music of My Mind" and it was an instant chart topper.

That album marked the beginning of a series that is destined to record an unforgettable era in the life of one of America's greatest composer-songwriters.

In June 1972, Wonder released "Talking Book" while in the midst of a 50-day tour with the Rolling Stones. (Ironically enough, he toured with the Stones in 1964, billed on top; however, this time the Stones were billed No. 1). The record was a huge musical step ahead for Wonder, a feat always striven for by good musicians, but achieved by only the best. Stevie comments, "People shouldn't expect a set thing from me. I love to grow."

A Look at the Man

In 1973 the Wonder recorded and released the newest addition to his growing library, "Innervisions" is an experience in perception and songwriting by the Wonder at his best. In the past 12 years that he has been a professional musician, he has learned many skills, including a beautifully polished knack for telling a story in song. A perfect example of this is "Living in the City," a single released from the album that is receiving wide range air-play.

"Innervisions" is a beautifully polished album that is strong musically and content wise from first song to last. It contains songs destined to become standards for the 23-year-old musician, and other performers. Almost like "Superstition" and "Sunshine of My Life."

If these are the "Innervisions" of Stevie Wonder, one can't help but wonder how it is to be in his mind. Because, if it is as light and breezy as Wonder's music, it must be a fine, pleasant mind indeed. One capable of turning out the same quality, let's hope so, because Stevie Wonder is almost a solitary light of hope in a tarnished sea of musical mediocrity.

Eckardt Displays Brilliance

By JANET SVENDSEN
Managing Editor

If the first performance in this semester's Campus Concert Series is any indication of the quality one can expect in future presentations of this kind, Valley's culture enthusiasts can look forward to a musically gratifying semester.

The series opened last Thursday with a stirring piano recital of selected classical pieces performed by Miss Lorraine Eckardt, professor of music. It was hardly necessary for her to modestly refer to her performance as a "good chance for a rehearsal" for her upcoming concerts, one of which will be given at USC in December.

She demonstrated impressive talent as a concert pianist. She has been playing the piano since she was six years old, and it is apparent that her musical success has been reinforced by many years of "rehearsal."

Although her rendition of Bach's "Fantasia in C minor" was punctuated with a few minor flaws in timing, it was otherwise well-delivered and received. The fast tempo and difficult fingering required in the piece were executed by Miss Eckardt without the use of sheet music.

p. m.

Four movements of Franz Schubert's "Sonata in D major," involving interwoven melodies running the gamut from passages demanding a delicate touch to those requiring great physical effort and depth of feeling were rendered with expertise.

Miss Eckardt's performance of "Vallises Nobles et Sentimentales" by Ravel was truly impressive. Delicately haunting yet richly intense, the piece was delivered with graceful style.

In spite of the fact that she could not play the complete version of "Vingt Regards sur L'Enfant Jesus" by Olivier Messiaen (because it is approximately two hours long), Miss Eckardt played one of its movements to illustrate the interesting effect achieved by alternating half and whole key steps to attain "new dimensions of tonality," as she phrased it. This piece was really exciting; its graduated intensity levels and dissonant chords were rightfully "played up." Miss Eckardt displayed great dexterity in her rendition of the piece as she did during the entire concert.

LORRAINE ECKARDT, professor of music, successfully initiated this semester's Campus Concert Series last Thursday in Monarch Hall with various impressive classical selections on piano.

the Epicurean

As each course of the dinner builds upon the preceding one, so too does the crescendo of excitement build with each event leading up to the arrival of King Henry VIII. This was so as the much-publicized and controversial 1520 A.D. theater restaurant, where court jesters in white tunics and tights perform their magic and mime while pinchable wenchies in floor-length bodice dresses serve up the meals.

In a 16th-century setting, customers seated at long wooden benches and tables show their pleasure or displeasure throughout the evening by banging on tabletops, glasses, or their nearest neighbor with the silverware.

'Keeper of the Salt'

To start the festivities, a "Keeper of the Salt" is appointed from the audience to hold the only available bowl of salt at his table. Anyone desiring salt must come forth and kneel at the "Keeper's" feet. Ladies of the court are doubly discriminated against by having to "buss" the "Keeper."

While patrons are being primed for the main event, minstrels appease them by leading all in a group sing. One unfortunate soul was caught with his mouth open, but not singing. In the midst of imbibing some good wine spirits, he was found guilty by the court and placed in stocks for everyone to see. However, the good ladies of the audience came forward to kiss him and brighten his spirits (which were already somewhat brightened by the wine).

Booing and Banging

Then Will Sommers, a merry minstrel, enlightens the audience on etiquette attributable to a King. "Now remember, women," he says, "you are not ladies but second-class citizens," whereby he is promptly greeted with much booing and banging on the tables by the women. One female of the audience was seen being escorted out the side entrance for getting carried away and throwing the remains of her dinner at Will.

By the time King Henry finally arrives, famished customers who were just about to dig into the main dish of succulent spare ribs of cornish hens must stand to greet him. Amidst cries of "What hail!" and "Wassail!" the King makes his way to front stage where he and Will lead the audience in a series of rather risqué rhyme and song.

After those celebrating birthdays and anniversaries are brought forth to be congratulated, the audience joins the King, his wenchies, and court jesters by singing and swaying along to the grand finale of "Auld Lang Syne."

The one disappointment of the evening comes when the check is presented to the customer. The price of a single meal is $8.95, which doesn't include the wine or beer.

Although the meal is overpriced, it is compensated for by professional entertainment and the thought upon leaving 1520 A.D. that, indeed, a good time was had by all.

Censure Urged At IOC Meeting

By NORMA WISMER
Staff Writer

"There will be a tremendous chasm between Jews and non-Jews in this country because Jews will realize they again stand alone," said Farrel Broslawsky, assistant professor of history, speaking to a crowded Inter-Organization Council meeting last Thursday.

"Once again Jews are to blame. We get it from all sides, bigots, racists, anti-semites," he said.

District Rep Attends First ACE Meeting

Dr. Louis Kaufman, executive vice-chancellor of the Los Angeles Community College District (LACCD), served as the district's first representative to the conference of the nation's leading educational figures.

Dr. Kaufman's presence at the 56th annual meeting of the American Council on Education (ACE) marked the first time the LACCD had a delegate to the group that holds discussions in Washington every year. The 1973 conference was held from Wednesday through Friday last week at the Shoreham Hotel in the nation's capital.

Kaufman said before his departure from Los Angeles that the Board of Trustees is more determined now than ever to achieve coordination between two-year and four-year colleges.

When the Board of Trustees approved membership in the ACE during their Oct. 3 meeting, the Los Angeles Community College District, for the first time, joined an organization which was not exclusively composed of junior colleges. Kaufman said this will keep the efforts of the community colleges in harmony with those of state colleges and other educational institutions. He also pointed out that the result of this move will be a benefit to students who ultimately transfer to four-year colleges.

ACE is a council of educational organizations throughout the nation that make use of comprehensive, voluntary, and cooperative programs to advance education. Various tasks are performed by its committees and commissions.

This council has met annually since 1918, when it was founded, but this was the first time that the L.A. community colleges participated.

Outreach Expands Program; Adds Three Credit Classes

Valley College's Outreach program will further expand its offerings in the city of San Fernando with three more credit classes starting Nov. 1 at St. Ferdinand's School, located at 1012 Coronel Street. All are scheduled on Thursday.

These are: Modern Business, a one-unit course scheduled from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; Business English, 1½ units offered from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., and an Introduction to College, also one unit and slotted for 7 to 9 p.m.

The credit is toward an Associate in Arts degree. These classes are directed toward the needs of Spanish speaking students and have instructors that are bilingual.

These classes are in addition to nine already being offered in San Fernando. The college is hopeful these project offerings will lead to the establishment of more credit classes for the spring semester, which begins Jan. 28. The three classes run through Jan. 24.

Outreach is an attempt by the college to bring its services to where it's needed in the community. Besides extending a balanced education to those who might otherwise have missed the opportunity to attend a higher learning institution, Outreach has the added benefit of stimulating good relations between the college and the community.

Outreach is an attempt by the college to bring its services to where it's needed in the community. Besides extending a balanced education to those who might otherwise have missed the opportunity to attend a higher learning institution, Outreach has the added benefit of stimulating good relations between the college and the community.

These classes are in addition to nine already being offered in San Fernando. The college is hopeful these project offerings will lead to the establishment of more credit classes for the spring semester, which begins Jan. 28. The three classes run through Jan. 24.

Board Contemplates Pool Building Plans

By FERNANDO DOMINGUEZ
Sports Editor

The Los Angeles Community College Board of Trustees met yesterday at Pierce College to discuss the priorities for construction of swimming pools at Pierce, L.A. Trade-Tech, and Valley colleges.

If approved by the Board, the project will be financed by the community service funds, and will go under a 10-year plan set up by the District Planning Division.

"The district and board are more for it," said Donald Brunet, dean of educational services at Valley. "There's a good chance it could pass this year."

If the present project is approved by the Board, it will mark the end of 13 years of frustrated efforts by the Valley administration.

The $135,000 outdoor pool requested by Valley would be 50 meters long, 25 yards wide, and ranging from 4 to 11 feet deep.

Valley's swimming and water polo teams are currently using the Kris Kristenson's Swim facilities at 12922 Victory Blvd., for training sessions and Birmingham High's pool for inter-collegiate meets. Valley is spending $10,000 annually for the rental of the two facilities.

"It will be great if we could get the pool," said Valley swimming and water polo coach Bill Krauss. "Right now we have the worst possible work-out hours for water polo. We were using Birmingham High's pool from 2-4 p.m., but the Birmingham girls' team took over the hours for their training, and we had to move to a 4-6 p.m. slot."

Krauss also said that Kristenson's pool is terrible because it only has four lanes.

"Right now I have 20 swimmers on the roster, but I'll have to cut down the squad to 15 because there is no room for all 20 to train in the pool," said Krauss.

Campus Film Series Slated

Four noted films will appear in succession in Monarch Hall Wednesday, Oct. 24. They will be shown for the Campus Film Series from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and again from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. These movies are "The Winter Soldier," "The Women's Film," "My Country Occupied," and "Viva Frelimo."

"The Winter Soldier" publicizes the 1971 hearings into alleged atrocities committed during the Indochina War. Several Marine veterans testify about what they saw and did while serving.

"The Women's Film" was made by women working in the San Francisco NEWSREEL. It was a combined effort of women in front of and behind the camera.

"My Country Occupied" centers around Oaxaca, the wife of a plantation worker, who travels with her husband to Guatemala City after he loses his 20 cent-per-day job on the plantation. At the slaughter house where Oaxaca's husband finally finds work again, strikes by workers begin and he disappears, following a government quelling of the strikes. Oaxaca returns to her native village and is introduced to guerrilla organizations. She later joins their efforts.

"Viva Frelimo" is the story of Mozambique's struggle for independence against Portugal. FRELIMO is made up of the initials for words which mean "Mozambique Liberation Front."

Admission is 50 cents for students and each film lasts 30 minutes.

District Outreach Program Expands From Infant Idea

Operation Outreach used to be just an idea. Although East L.A. College had the concept for bringing classes to those who did not have the opportunity to attend college; the infant program has now grown to include all eight colleges in the L.A. Community College District to over 8,200 students. Plans by many of the deans indicate they wish the overall totals to nearly double in the upcoming year.

The Outreach program is designed to do two things. One goal is to give campus education to the community by holding classes in public buildings and other low rent areas more accessible to the community. The other is to give a second chance to any individual who would otherwise not have a chance to attend college because of a long layoff from school, or because they dropped out of school.

Attending an Outreach class can soften the blow of returning to school again, and hopefully bring the student to a level where he can return to school and academically compete with the student body.

Community Needs at Heart

The classes throughout the district run nearly the same generally as the regular schedule of classes found in most of the community colleges. The classes differ slightly from area to area depending upon what the community wants and needs most. But the classes are always arranged with the sake of the community and its needs at heart.

The funds for Operation Outreach come from a special tax provided for in the master plan for community colleges. This tax is the community services tax, which is a property tax enabling the district to tax the homeowner 5 cents on $100 of assessment. The money can only be used for community services.

Programs Offered

Some of the more interesting programs offered are the occupational safety course, radiation technology classes at LACC, secretarial services for medical terminology at Pierce College, management of parks and recreation at L.A. Trade-Tech, and a class for police at the Sheriff's Academy on dealing with the public.

But aside from all the community help, a program of this nature is fundamental to the existing community college setup. The idea of holding classes in unused public facilities is good not only because it brings education to the community, but also because it allows the college to educate people without building new structures, a definite saving of funds for other purposes.

The program also allows the student to gather units toward graduation without ever coming on campus. East Los Angeles College graduated 13 pupils last semester who reportedly never came on campus, opening many new possible ways to get an AA degree.

A new facet of the program is modular scheduling.

Molded after the evening division classes, these single meeting classes will run from 8-11 a.m. and from noon to three. This way a person could carry a full load in two days, and still have plenty of time to work.

This is another example of an experiment to make education at the college level more accessible, and to try and break the Los Angeles Community College District away from the high school image given it when community colleges were run by L.A. City Schools.
